

REMARKS

Pursuant to a recent conversation with Examiner Sikorski in Group Art Unit 2505, the prior preliminary amendments were not entered because of incorrect numbering. This amendment corrects the numbering problem and seeks to effect the same changes as originally submitted.

Applicant presents here a series of additional claims for prosecution which are directed to specific applications of the present invention. In order to provide a guide through these additional claims, applicant sets forth a brief description of these claims.

A. Music CD Products.

Claims 14 through 26 are directed to a system for previewing audio CD music products. These claims differ from those claims allowed in the parent case in that no subscriber information is necessary, nor is the use of an optical scanner.

Claims 27 through 29 are directed to an apparatus which permits music product previewing and which stores demographic data generated during use of the preview feature.

Claims 30 through 32 relate to music product previewing wherein product identification takes place by selection of an existing reference to the music product.

Claims 33 through 34 are directed to music product previewing wherein product identification takes place by entry of a some identifying code.

Claims 35 through 37 are similar in scope to claims 30 through 32, but they delete reference to use of the system in a retail store location.

Claims 38 and 39 are similar in scope to claims 33 and 34, but they delete reference to use of the system in a retail store location.

B. Software Products

Claims 40 through 52. See comments above with respect to claims 14 through 26, except applied to software products.

Claims 53 through 55. See comments above with respect to claims 27 through 29, except applied to software products.

Claims 56 through 58. See comments above with respect to claims 30 through 32, except applied to software products.

Claims 59 through 60. See comments above with respect to claims 33 through 34, except as applied to software products.

Claims 61 through 63. See comments above with respect to claims 35 through 37, except as applied to software products.

Claims 64 through 65. See comments above with respect to claims 38 through 39, except as applied to software products.

C. Video Products

Claims 66 through 78. See comments above with respect to claims 14 through 26, except as applied to video products.

Claims 79 through 81. See comments above with respect to claims 27 through 29, except as applied to video products.

Claims 82 through 84. See comments above with respect to claims 30 through 32, except as applied to video products.

Claims 85 through 86. See comments above with respect to claims 33 through 34, except as applied to video products.

Claims 87 through 89. See comments above with respect to claims 35 through 37, except as applied to video products.

Claims 90 through 91. See comments above with respect to claims 38 through 39, except as applied to video products.

D. Interactive CD-ROM Products.

Claims 92 through 104. See comments above with respect to claims 14 through 26, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Claims 105 through 107. See comments above with respect to claims 27 through 29, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Claims 108 through 110. See comments above with respect to claims 30 through 32, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Claims 111 through 112. See comments above with respect to claims 33 through 34, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Claims 113 through 115. See comments above with respect to claims 35 through 37, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Claims 116 through 117. See comments above with respect to claims 38 through 39, except as applied to interactive CD-ROM products.

Applicant submits that these claims are supported in the original application in at least the following places: Page 7, lines 15 through 21; and original claims 1 and 4. These claims were intended to represent generic claims which would cover each of the species now separately claimed.

Respectfully submitted,
